

BRIEFING PACKAGE FOR CANDIDATES

MemoryCare

Brand, product, and audience — everything a designer needs to get acquainted with the project before starting work.

Compiled August 14, 2026

Package Overview

This package is what to send a candidate for the designer role (logo, brand book, website/platform) to get acquainted with the project before starting work, or before they give an estimate/proposal. Compiled 14.08.2026 from the company's internal business archive.

What's inside

1. `01-Company-and-Audience.md` — who we are, what problem we solve, for whom.
2. `02-Brand.md` — the name (the only unchangeable element), the tagline, symbol references, palette, typography requirements, tone.
3. `03-Product-and-Site.md` — pricing tiers, the key product mechanic (the “Family Circle”), what to show on the site, languages.
4. `04-References-and-Success-Criteria.md` — what to aim for, what to avoid, how we'll know the design worked.
5. `05-Materials-and-Full-Deliverables-List.md` — what the company provides upfront (existing site copy, legal details), the bank's requirements for the site's structure (8 mandatory pages), the full deliverables list by stage.
6. `06-Current-State.md` — concrete critique of the current temporary site (what must be fixed), the live site as a reference with a caveat, additional meaning behind the symbol.

Reference images of the symbol and logo are shown in the “Brand” section below.

What we need from the designer first

The order matters — part of the work runs in parallel with platform development (~45 days for the developers), and without mockups the developers are blocked:

1. Photo/video report template — this is the company's actual product (see 03). Needed before anything else.
2. Pricing page — 4 cards, with “2᠘ᠤᠨᠤᠯᠤ” visually set apart from the three annual packages.
3. Client cabinet screens — viewing a report, visit status, plan change, “Family Circle”.
4. After that — informational pages required by the bank, the full brand book, vector logo, crew uniform, vehicle wrap, social templates, business cards. Full list in `05-Materials-and-Full-Deliverables-List.md`.

Format and timeline (reference from the previous contract — negotiable)

- Timeline — about 1 month.
- Previous contract's budget — 1,000,000 AMD for the full package (logo
 - brand book + report template + site mockups + uniform + vehicle wrap + social templates).Not a hard reference point — open for discussion with the candidate.
- Source files (Figma/AI) are handed over to the company as a condition of each stage's acceptance.
- Mobile-first is mandatory — most traffic comes from phones.

Company and Audience

Who we are

MemoryCare (Memory Care LLC, Yerevan) is a subscription service for professional care of family memorial plots in Yerevan cemeteries: cleaning, plant care, minor repairs, with a mandatory photo/video report and a GPS tag for every visit, delivered through a client cabinet.

The company is registered, the memorycare.am domain is purchased, and the platform (client cabinet, payments, reports) is being developed in parallel with the design work.

What problem we solve

People want to, but can't regularly care for their loved ones' memorial plots: some live far away, others simply don't have the time. In both cases, the result is the same — a constant sense of guilt and anxiety, and often the person doesn't even know the current condition of the plot.

We solve both problems at once: we care for the plot regularly, and after every visit we show the real condition — photo, video, a point on the map, a date.

Two client personas — both equally important

Persona 1 — Armenian diaspora. Age 35–60, living in the US (Los Angeles/Glendale, New York, Boston), France (Paris, Marseille), Russia (Moscow), Germany, and other parts of Europe. Established, with a family. Their parents'/grandparents' memorial plot is in Yerevan. They visit once a year or less. Driver — the sense of duty and guilt over distance.

Persona 2 — a Yerevan resident. Age 40–60, above-average income, busy. Driver — lack of time, not distance.

Important: one brand, one page for both personas. Do not build separate diaspora and local versions of the site. Do not write copy that's only about "across the ocean" / "cheaper than flying yourself" — that reads as excluding the local client. The headline should lead with the outcome ("the memorial plot is cared for, even when you can't be there yourself"), not the cause; the subheadline/body names both reasons (distance OR being busy) in one natural sentence each.

What sets us apart

There's no organized competitor in Armenia with a brand, regularity, and reporting — only individual contractors without guarantees. Globally, similar models are already proven (Tending in the US, Grabpflege in Germany, Styks in Poland, GraveCareUkraine), but none of them combine photo + video + GPS + client cabinet + the “Family Circle” (relatives get their own access to all reports and can order one-off services) — we have that from launch. More detail in `03-Product-and-Site.md`.

Current status

The company is at the starting line: the legal entity and bank account are set up, field crew hiring is underway, and the first paid pilot (5–10 visits) is planned for September 2026. There are no real clients or testimonials yet — the site doesn’t need invented reviews or “X happy families” numbers; instead, lean on process and proof (“verified visits,” “GPS-tagged reports”).

Brand

What's fixed (the one hard constraint)

The name — MemoryCare, one word, mixed case (“Memory” + “Care”). Legal entity: Memory Care LLC. This is the only thing that's not up for discussion. Everything else on this page is direction and reference, not a spec: if you have a better solution and can justify it to the business — propose it, we're open.

Tagline

“Honoring Memory, Caring for Loved Ones.”

Localized ARM/RUS versions are not yet finalized — that can be discussed as part of the brand book work.

Symbol (reference, not dogma)

See the files in `assets/brand/` :

- `forget-me-not-reference.jpeg` — the Armenian forget-me-not (Ամմոռուկ): 5 rounded petals, fine radiating stamens at the center.
- `eternity-symbol-reference.jpeg` — the Armenian symbol of eternity (Հավերժություն / aravakhach): an 8-blade “pinwheel” with a scalloped/wavy outer edge and a small circular opening at the center. This is not rings — if you see the symbol described anywhere as “rings” or “interlocking rings,” that's an error, not the reference.
- `logo-reference.jpeg` — both elements together, a reference sketch: the forget-me-not sits on top of the eternity symbol, which in turn sits between two open hands.

Component 1 — forget-me-not

Component 2 — eternity symbol

Both components together —
reference sketch

We're open to a full rebrand of the symbol if you can justify why it's better for the business.

Why these specific elements

The meaning we like in the reference sketch, and want preserved through any redesign (even if you propose a different form): the logo reads as three layers nested inside one another. The forget-me-not — memory. The Armenian eternity symbol — identity, national context. The two hands — care. Soft linear graphics, a light tonality — deliberately not a funeral aesthetic.

Practical requirement for the vector redraw: the symbol must stay legible at small sizes — favicon, a badge on the crew uniform. Simplifying detail for that purpose is fine, as long as the three layers stay recognizable.

Palette (desired, not mandatory)

- Olive green `#5E6A3A` (hover `#7C8654`) — primary accent.
- Anthracite `#33373C` / `#6B7075` — primary text, dark surfaces.
- Warm white (not pure `#FFFFFF`) `#FAFAF7` — page background.

The criterion matters more than the exact hex values — easy readability and a premium feel without coldness. If you propose a different palette with justification, we'll consider it.

Typography

Full support for Armenian, Latin, and Cyrillic in one font pairing (or a coordinated family) is required. The choice of specific typefaces is up to the designer.

Tone and mood

Light, premium minimalism: lots of white space, large typography, restrained “editorial” elegance. Warm, but professional — the person should exhale, not tense up.

Brand as a person (3–5 words): reliable, caring, reserved, professional, respectful. The image is an adult child in the family, the one trusted with what matters most.

References we like: tending.app (a direct category analog, calm tone), headspace.com (calm without funeral overtones), stripe.com (cleanliness and trust around payments), airbnb.com (card-based, photo-first approach).

What to clearly avoid:

- Funeral clichés: dominant black, crosses, gothic type, candles.
- Guilt-tripping the reader.
- Excessive sentimentality.

- Cold corporate style.
- Cheap stock imagery instead of real material.
- Loud discount elements.

There are no real professional photos yet — a shoot (drone + camera) is planned during the pilot in September. Until then, the designer works with clean, temporary placeholders.

Product and Site

Pricing lineup — 4 products, one price for every client

No surcharge for plot size, and no difference between local clients and diaspora clients.

Tier (client-facing Armenian name)	Composition	Price	Role
Չննույն (Inspection)	1 visit: photo/video of the plot's current condition + a priced list of recommended work. No cleaning is performed	20,000 AMD	A one-off service, not a subscription — should visually stand apart from the three annual packages on the pricing page. Low barrier to entry + “see what kind of company we are”
Էքսպրեսս իննամբ (Express)	1 full visit	60,000 AMD	One-off service / trial
Օպտիմալ իննամբ (Optimal) — flagship	6 visits per year	180,000 AMD	Expected primary choice — mark it as the leading option (not literally “bestseller,” something more understated)
Մաքսիմում իննամբ (Maximum)	9 visits per year	240,000 AMD	Premium tier. Important: never describe it as “monthly” — we promise a specific number of visits, not calendar regularity

Prices are in Armenian dram (AMD). If you show amounts in $/€, always mark them clearly as approximate/reference values — the actual charge is in AMD.

“Family Circle” — key differentiator, give it visibility

The subscription owner invites relatives via a link. An invited relative gets their own access — they can see all reports and order one-off services (for example, flowers for a memorial date with a separate photo report). This works from platform launch, not deferred to later. On the site, this isn't a minor feature but a full, dedicated block — it's something no global analog offers in this form.

The report is the actual product

The client isn't paying for cleaning (they can't verify it in person), but for proof that the care happened. That's why the report template is the designer's priority task (see `00-Overview.md`).

What goes into a report per the crew's field protocol:

- 4 fixed angles before work + the same 4 angles after, from the same points (overall view of the plot, monument front-on, close-up of the inscription/portrait, surrounding area).
- A video walkthrough of the plot, 20–40 seconds, before and after.
- GPS tag and date/time of the visit.
- A short comment from the crew about the work performed.

Formatting requirements: photos shouldn't be overloaded with graphics — no frames, bright badges, or captions over the image (the person is looking at their parents' resting place; visual noise is out of place). A date/GPS mark is needed, but it should be understated. Three layout variants are needed: for the client cabinet, for email, for social media. A separate, different format is needed for the “Զննում” report (no before/after pair there — just current condition + a priced list of recommended work).

Site sections

1. Home screen — the offer + visual proof (an example before/after report) right on the first screen.
2. Pricing — 4 cards, “Զննում” visually set apart.
3. What proof looks like — a dedicated screen with a sample report; this is the company's real product, give it real visual weight, not a small block.
4. How it works — subscribe → visits → photo/video/GPS report.
5. Family Circle — a dedicated block.
6. Trust block — verification, regularity, transparency, for both audiences (not diaspora-only trust signals).
7. Language switcher — 3 languages: Armenian, English, Russian.
8. Clear call to action.

Main call to action

A request for a free consultation (name + phone/WhatsApp) — not a direct purchase. The annual amount is significant, and the decision gets made after a conversation. Online payment is the second most important action, for clients who are already ready.

Technical constraints for the mockups

- Mobile-first is mandatory — the diaspora audience mostly arrives from a phone.
- 3 languages: Armenian, English, Russian (a switcher, full translation, not decoration).
- The font pairing must fully support all three languages.
- The platform (cabinet, payment, reports) is being built in parallel with the design — the cabinet mockups and the report template are needed by the developers earlier than the full brand book.

References and Success Criteria

The first 5 seconds on the site

The person should:

- Understand: “professional care for memorial plots in Armenia, with photo/video proof of every visit.”
- Feel: calm and trust, not sadness or anxiety.
- See: a sample before/after report — right on the first screen, not buried inside the site.

Measurable success criteria (a reference point, not a hard KPI for the designer)

- Visitor → lead conversion: $\geq 3\%$.
- Lead → payment conversion: $\geq 40\%$ (this is no longer a design metric, but design does influence the trust that drives conversion).
- Mobile load time: < 3 seconds.
- Mobile conversion should be no worse than desktop.

Tone and approach references

- tending.app — a direct category analog, calm tone.
- headspace.com — calm and lightness without funeral aesthetics.
- stripe.com — cleanliness, trust in the payment section.
- airbnb.com — a card-based, photo-first approach to content.

What to avoid (repeated from the brand section, because it's critical)

- Dominant black, crosses, gothic fonts, candles — funeral clichés that are explicitly rejected.
- Guilt-tripping in copy or visuals.
- Excessive sentimentality.
- Cold corporate style.
- Cheap stock instead of real (even if currently temporary, but clean) material.
- Loud discount elements, ticking countdown timers, etc. — this is a premium service, not a clearance sale.
- Diaspora-exclusive copy and visuals (“across the ocean,” “cheaper than flying yourself”) — the site should work equally well for a Yerevan client.

- The word “monthly” in relation to the “Maximum” tier — it’s 9 visits, not 12, and it’s not a calendar subscription.
- The word “bestseller” in client-facing materials — the leading tier needs a more understated way of standing out.
- A QR code on the headstone / “digital memory page” — that’s a product for the company’s next stage of growth; it is not part of the current brief and must not appear on the site, even as “coming soon.”

Delivery format

- Mockups — first priority for the three screens listed in `00-Overview.md` (report template, pricing page, cabinet screens), everything else as a second stage.
- Source files (Figma/AI) are handed over to the company as a condition of each stage’s acceptance.
- The final call on the visual direction rests with the company, but if you have a well-reasoned professional disagreement with a detail of the brief, you’re welcome to propose alternatives.

Materials and Full Deliverables List

What we give the designer upfront

- Reference photos of the symbols (forget-me-not, eternity symbol, logo sketch — see the “Brand” section).
- The palette with hex codes.
- The tagline and its current translations.
- Existing site copy in all three languages (Armenian, English, Russian) — the designer doesn’t write copy from scratch, only builds the structure and layout around it; the copy can be changed by agreement, up to a full rewrite, if you propose a better structure.
- Pricing and service descriptions (see “Product and Site”).
- Platform functional requirements — for coordinating layout with the developers (they have ~45 days for development, running in parallel).
- The company's legal details (for business cards, letterhead, site footer):
 - Legal name: Memory Care LLC / «ՄԵՄՈՐԻԻԶԵՅՐ» ՍՊԸ
 - Address: Armenia, 0051, Yerevan, Komitas Ave. 47/1, building 9
 - info@memorycare.am
 - David Hambardzumyan — CEO, +374 55 315 323
 - Hayk Manukyan — CBDO, +374 93 154 108

The brand book, as a standalone document, is created by the designer — that’s part of the contract, not something we hand over in advance.

Bank requirements for the site — they shape the architecture, not just the copy

Ameriabank (card acquiring) requires 8 specific things to be present on the site before enabling card payments. That means, beyond the marketing screens, the designer needs to build separate informational pages into the site’s structure:

1. An “About us” page — company description, legal name and registration details.
2. Contact information — phone, email, address — in the footer of every page, not just a dedicated one.
3. A full description of services — the pricing page with the exact composition of each product (see “Product and Site”).
4. Legal restrictions — the service area, and a requirement that the client confirm they have the right to make decisions about the plot (the text comes from the lawyer, placement on the page is the designer’s job).

5. Real prices and currency — prices in AMD; amounts in $/€ only as reference values, clearly marked as such.
6. A privacy policy — a separate page, mandatory in English (text comes from the lawyer).
7. Return terms — a separate page or block (text comes from the lawyer).
8. Terms of service — timing of the first visit after payment, the scheduling process, what happens if a visit can't happen (text comes from the lawyer).

The texts for items 4, 6, 7, and 8 are prepared by the lawyer — the designer's job here is not to write them, but to make room for them in the site's structure and present them in the same visual language, not as "small print noise" in the footer, but as proper, restrained pages.

Interactive element on the pricing page

A currency calculator — AMD/USD/EUR/RUB, interactive (not a static table). Reference exchange rates are fine for now, marked as "approximate" — a live rate feed isn't required for launch.

Full deliverables list by stage

Stage 1 (critical, needed by the developers first):

- Photo/video report template — 3 layout variants (cabinet, email, social media) + a separate format for the "ՉԱՆՈՒՄ" report.
- Pricing page — 4 cards + currency calculator.
- Client cabinet screens (viewing a report, visit status, plan change, "Family Circle").

Stage 2:

- Vector logo: SVG/AI + PNG set, variants for light background, dark background, and monochrome.
- Compact brand book: logo with clear space, palette, typography, the tagline and its usage rules, tone, "do/don't" examples.
- The site's informational pages required by the bank (see above).

Stage 3:

- Field crew uniform — t-shirt/vest/cap, production-ready mockups.
- Vehicle wrap (Ford Transit Connect).
- Social media templates: before/after case post, testimonial post, seasonal post (Merelots, Zatik/Easter, Vardavar, April 24, New Year), Family Circle invitation.
- Business cards, letterhead, email signature.
- Site OG images and favicons.

The order between stages 2 and 3 is open for discussion with the candidate — the only fixed point is that stage 1 can't wait.

Current State

What's wrong with the current site (this is exactly what this brief fixes)

The current site is a temporary landing page, built before the product took its current shape.

Concrete problems the new design has to fix:

- Empty temporary placeholders instead of real photos and contacts.
- No client cabinet (personal page) and no payment.
- No before/after cases.
- The visual doesn't live up to the premium price point — the site feels cheaper than the service actually costs.
- A weak mobile version — while mobile is the primary channel for this audience (see “Company and Audience”).

This isn't an abstract style preference — it's a direct list of what the new design is expected to fix relative to the current state.

The live site as a reference (with an important caveat)

There's a current version of the site at `memorycarearmenia.netlify.app`. Important: as of this brief's compilation date (14.08.2026), it reflects an earlier revision of the product — the old tagline, the old pricing lineup (3 tiers instead of 4, without “ՀԱՆՈՒՄ”), a 4-language switcher instead of 3. The current facts are only in this briefing package (sections 01–05), not on the live site. It's worth looking at only for a general sense of structure/feel — “what's already been tried” — not as a source for the current tagline, pricing, or languages.

More on the symbol — why these specific elements

The meaning we like in the reference sketch, and want preserved through any redesign (even if you propose a different form): the logo reads as three layers nested inside one another. The forget-me-not — memory. The Armenian eternity symbol — identity, national context. The two hands — care. Soft linear graphics, a light tonality — deliberately not a funeral aesthetic.

Practical requirement for the vector redraw: the symbol must stay legible at small sizes — favicon, a badge on the crew uniform. Simplifying detail for that purpose is fine, as long as the three layers stay recognizable.
